REMINISCENCES OF PIONEER DAYS

Gleanings From the Records Left by the Men Who Laid the Foundation of San Mateo County Institutions

The year 1873 was evidently one of much activity in the way of church activity in Redwood City. Following the example set by the Congregational and Methodist people a few months before, in the latter part of August the members of the Baptist Church began to consider plans for the completion of the interior of their church, which had been used in an unfinished state, not even having been plastered. With this end in view a meeting was held September 8th, at which all of the trustees and a considerable number of the members were present. The requirements of the building were presented in a statement by H. A. Jones, with the assurance that if $400 could be raised among the members and friends of the Church the building could be finished in accordance with the original plans. As it had been estimated that the cost of finishing the building would not be less than $750, this offer created a considerable enthusiasm and steps were immediately taken to raise the money asked for.

Although in its earlier days the Southern Pacific Railroad was never accused by its patrons of running its trains between this city and San Francisco at too high a speed, it seems that it was no more absolutely safe to attempt to drive a horse along the track without paying attention to the whistle of than it is to attempt to cross the tracks now without watching for the locomotive, as is shown by the following item in the Gazette of September 20, 1873: "On Sunday last J. H. Offermann and Mr. Hadler of the Eureka Brewery started from town on a ride to Belmont. When about a mile out they met the train on the railroad just as the whistle sounded for a crossing, and their horse becoming frightened wheeled completely around, upsetting the buggy and throwing the occupants violently to the ground. Mr. Offermann was severely bruised and somewhat cut about the head, but not seriously injured. Mr. Hadler was severely cut about the face and head, and in some manner for which he cannot account had his left ankle broken and badly crushed. Dr. Kirkpatrick attended to their wounds and they are getting along as comfortably as could be expected. Mr. Hadler will be laid up for some time."

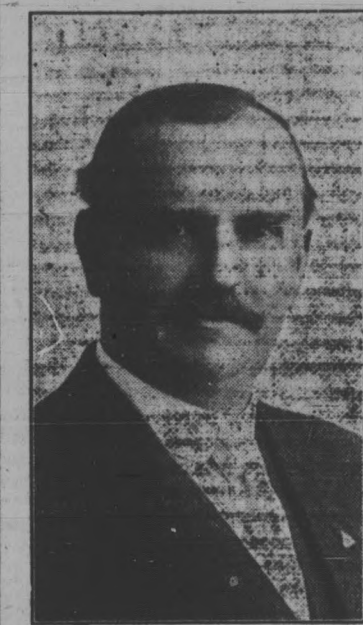

For the second time since the organization of the county, Redwood City was compelled to put up a hard fight in 1873 to retain the county seat within its limits, and this time was successful by a very small margin. Differing from the original contest, this fight was settled by the voters without an appeal to the courts. In this instance her opponent was the town of San Mateo. The movement to secure a change of the county seat to that town had its inception at a public meeting held on the evening of September 29th, at Walker's Hall. This meeting was attended by some 30 residents of the town, and was presided over by J. E. Butler, with George Baker acting as secretary. Of course the sentiment in favor of that town securing the seat of county government and the prestige and business that would go with it was unanimous. After a slight discussion, a committee consisting of L. Jaszynsky, I. R. Goodspeed, W. Z. Price, H. Hussling, E. Walker, O. Brown and J. G. Moore, was appointed to take charge of the campaign. They were given authority to solicit funds with which to finance the scheme and to employ canvassers to obtain signatures to a petition to the Board of Supervisors for the calling of an election for the purpose of submitting the question to the voters of the county, and in addition to secure the offer of a site for the new county buildings. An offer of a location for the grounds was secured from Alvinza Hayward, who later offered a deed to the county of a lot 140x250 feet at Fifth street and Cedar avenue. The committee appointed at the meeting took no time in getting at its work, and a canvas for signatures was immediately started. This was soon completed and the necessary signatures obtained and the petition presented to the Supervisors at their meeting on October 6th, and the call for the election was issued the date being fixed for December 9th. The people of Redwood City seemed to have realized from the start that they had a hard fight on their hands and lost no time in preparing for an organized campaign to retain their hold on the official residence of the county officers. A mass meeting was called for the Evening of October 15th at the Germania Hall, which was attended by a large gathering of citizens of this portion of the county, Menlo Park, and Fair Oaks being well represented. This meeting was called to order by H. Kincaid and H. Templeton was elected president and D. McPherson, editor of the Gazette, secretary. After some short speeches, a resolution was adopted authorizing the chairman to appoint a committee of 18 to act as an executive committee of the campaign. This committee as appointed consisted of T. G. Phelps, Charles Hanson, Martin Kuck, John H. Offermann, G. Plump, James Hilton, John Crowley, A. Teague, C. N. Fox, H. Kincaid, T. W. Lathrop, John T. Doyle, F. D. Atherton, John Carroll, Geo. Wentworth, J. W. Adams, George W. Fox and Duncan McPherson. The campaign stirred up more interest throughout the county than any public question that had been submitted to the people, animated discussions being participated in by people of all sections, from the bay shore to the coastside, and from the north end to San Francisco Creek. Both sides pushed their campaign vigorously and speakers were sent to all points where it was possible to reach any number of voters. One decided advantage held by Redwood City was that it then had the only newspaper published in the county, and the Gazette devoted much of its editorial space to the question from the view point of its own home, although it had the liberality to offer the advocates of San Mateo an opportunity to use its columns. At the election there were a total of 1396 votes cast, and out of these Redwood City received the small majority of but 16. In this city the vote was 315 for Redwood and 4 for San Mateo, while in San Mateo the total of 183 votes was given for their town. In this connection it may be of general interest to the people of the county to understand the provisions of the deed by which the courthouse property is held. The deed is from Soledad O. de Arguello and Jose Ramon Arguello, of Santa Clara County, and S. M. Mezes, of San Francisco County, and runs to John B. Welles, Governor of the State of California, and his successors in office. The consideration named is $1, and the description of the property is as follows: "All of the following described real estate or block of land, situate in the town of Mezesville, in the county of San Mateo, and State afore said, and known and called in the Act establishing the seat of justice in said county as 'Redwood City,' and bounded and described on a map or plat as said Mezesville, made in January, 1854, for said S. M. Mezes by W. W. Dwyer, Deputy County Surveyor, and now on file in the Recorder's office of San Mateo County as block 3 in range B, between Second and Third streets." The deed concludes with this provision:

"For the use and benefit of the people of the State of California, and more particularly of the people of the County of San Mateo for a court house and jail and other public buildings."

Here is an evidence that the stork was not neglecting his business in this section: "Born, at Woodside, on March 28th, 1873, to the wife of George H. Rice, a son."

Evidently the people of the Methodist Church were not adverse to combining worldly education with religious instruction in their new church edifice, as testifies the following announcement in the Gazette of April 5th, 1873: "F. H. Costello will open a select school in Redwood City at the new Methodist Church, near Phelps street, commencing April 14th. Instruction given in English branches, also in French and German."

FRIEND WILLIAM RICHARDSON

Prominent Newspaper Publisher Who Would be State Printer.

In the light of the "fitness of things" unquestionably Friend W. Richardson is a logical candidate for the office of State Printer. Almost a lifetime of experience in the management of the newspaper business—in which he has been uniformly successful—has given him an opportunity for a thorough insight into the requirements of the printing trade which will be invaluable in the conduct of the office. Mr. Richardson has always been a consistent Republican and is entitled to recognition at the hands of the party. Ever an advocate of clean politics and honest government, he can safely be counted upon to give the office a strictly business administration and provide the State with the best of printing at the least consistent expense.

MAMMOTH MINERS.

The Experts Who Prospect and Dig For Prehistoric Creatures.

Mammoth miners are experts who know where to prospect for mammoths and how to dig them out, even as the mining engineer knows where to prospect for silver and how to extract it.

In the west, in Alaska and in Siberia mammoth miners are always at work. They are always unearthing creatures that died 100,000 years ago.

Siberia was the mammoth's true home. Siberia 100,000 years ago was one luxuriant forest. Here the fur covered beasts, with their ten foot trunks and their fifteen foot stature, swarmed. Then an earthquake moved a barrier range between Siberia and the Arctic ocean, and those low lying forests were inundated. All their animal and vegetable life was killed.

The first of the drowned Siberian mammoths was found in 1799 by an Eskimo villager on the banks of the Lena. It was imbedded in a vast cake of ice. The villagers melted the ice, they feasted on the 100,000-year-old flesh, and then they sold the tusks. Only the bones remained when Ziover of the Petersburg Imperial museum reached that outlandish village after a journey of 7,500 miles. He took the bones back to the museum, where you may see them mounted today. He bought the tusks from the ivory traders and fixed them on the skeleton, and the book he wrote about his find is still a text book among the mammoth miners of our day.

Safeguarding Crime.

It is inexplicable how those pessimistic carpers who are accustomed to hit all the minor chords with the loud pedal can fail to see all about them the unmistakable signs of progress and the reddening dawn of a new day in the social yeast. And especially is this true in matters pertaining to crime. There is no doubt that the general standards of crime have been immeasurably raised of late. Nowadays a man can do almost anything and get away with it, provided he can arouse the sympathy of the special lady writers and pay the experts. Ah, brothers, who can say that all this does not make for the general uplift? How can we hope to realize the better things of life until crime has been made perfectly safe?—Life.

GOT HIM CHEAP.
The Way a Famous Surgeon Was Once Cleverly Tricked.
Sir Morel Mackenzie once received a wire from Antwerp asking him his charges for a certain operation. He replied £500 and was told to come at once. When he stepped upon the dock he was met by three men in mourning, who informed him sadly that he had come too late, the patient had died.
"But," said the spokesman of the party, "we shall pay you your full fee." And they did. "And now," said the man, "since you are here, what do you say to visiting the city hospital and giving a clinic for the benefit of our local surgeons? It is not often they have an opportunity of benefiting by such science as yours."
Sir Morel said he would gladly comply. He went to the hospital and performed many operations, among which were two of a similar nature to that for which he had been called for. When he had finished all thanked him profusely. On the steamer going home he met a friend, who had a business house in Antwerp.
"Pretty scurvy trick they played on you, Sir Morel."
"What do you mean?" asked the surgeon.
"Told you the patient died before you arrived, didn't they?"
"Yes."
"Lies. You operated on him and a friend with the same trouble at the clinic. Got two operations for one price."

HE WAS EXCITED.
And Yet He Was Making Only a Very Reasonable Request.
It was a dramatic scene, pregnant with the most tragic possibilities. Thus thought a witness to the meeting of three Italians near the big express depot at Fifteenth and Market streets. A man and woman who were delivering a trunk into the hands of a clerk were suddenly confronted by another man, who was highly excited. He approached the woman. In voluble Italian he raved and swore and pleaded, while she stood equally excited and answers. The other man stood back against the wall, his arms folded defiantly, his head sunk on his chest. It certainly looked as if daggers were to be drawn. The interested bystander asked of some listeners who understood the rapidly spluttered dialect what the trouble was all about.
"Why," was the volunteered translation, "this woman has run away from her husband with this man," pointing to the bulky individual.
"Oh, and he is begging her to return," was the next query.
"Not on your life," was the expressive reply. "She has packed up all her husband's clothes in her trunk, as well as her own, and he is begging her to give back at least his Sunday suit."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Baked Men.
Workers in porcelain factories are literally baked, but by some miracle of use and want they remain sufficiently underdone to live. At least if they are not quite baked they endure a stronger heat than that which browns the Sunday sirloin. The furnaces wherein porcelain is finished are kept at the fiercest heat used in any industry. A chain of workmen, their hands and bodies swathed in fireproof garments, take the finished pieces from the fire one at a time and pass them to the cooling room. The man at the head of this chain—he who stands nearest the furnace—can work in only five minute shifts. In his intervals of rest he lies on a mattress drinking glass after glass of ice water from the hands of a small boy. At luncheon all about the chain of men steaks grill.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Just Tolerable.
Concerning a certain time serving Washington clergyman of whom a visitor was one day expressing a harsh estimate President Lincoln said:
"I think you are rather hard on Mr. He reminds me of a man in Illinois who was arrested for passing a counterfeit bill. He admitted that he had taken it to a bank cashier to know if it was a good bill. 'Well, what was the reply of the cashier?' asked his lawyer. 'Why,' evasively answered the prisoner, 'he said it was a pretty tolerable, respectable sort of a bill.'"
Mr. Lincoln thought the clergyman "a pretty tolerable, respectable sort of a clergyman."

At Close Range.
"Who is that neglected looking little boy with dirt over his face?"
"He is the child of the noted astronomer who lives over the way."
"Oh, is he? Come here, sonny. Run home and tell your father he doesn't need his telescope if he wants to see spots on the sun."—Baltimore American.

About three years ago they were first used in our family, when we lived in Buffalo, N. Y. Thirteen years in any case brought prompt and positive relief from pain and lameness in the back and other distressing difficulties due to weak kidneys. To say the least, the results were gratifying. FACTORY PROMOTERS MUCH ENCOURAGED

Business Men Give Enthusiastic Response to Call for Funds for New Enterprise.

An extensive boot and shoe factory, with its accompanying large payroll is now practically an assured fact for Redwood City, thanks to the energetic action of the executive committee of the Board of Trade and the enthusiastic support given their work by the members of the Board. It now only remains for the rest of the citizens of the city to do their share, and it will be possible to see this important industry established here before the end of the present year. That this support will be forthcoming promptly, was made evident by the liberal support given the promoters of the project at the special meeting of the Board of Trade held last Tuesday evening at the real estate office of H. C. Tuchen. Although the call for the meeting came rather unexpected, there was a splendid representation of the spirit of the people manifested by the number present and the business action which followed.

But little time was wasted in unnecessary preliminaries. As soon as the members had been seated the meeting was called to order by President Stafford of the Board, who outlined the business of the meeting by a short outline of the proposal to be considered and a report of the results of the investigations of the executive committee. The proposal submitted by the manufacturing concern is the same as has already been made known. The corporation has definitely decided upon Redwood City as its first choice for a new location for its factory. In proposing to come here, the corporation asks that the people in this city provide them with a site and buildings for the factory, and in return they are to guarantee to establish here a factory which will maintain a payroll that will amount to not less than $50,000 per year. As a guarantee of good faith, it is to be provided that the site and buildings are not to become the property of the manufacturing corporation until after the business has been maintained here for five years and they have demonstrated during that time that the amount paid out for help shall at least equal the amount promised. That the owners of the factory, which is now in operation, are acting in good faith, the members of the executive committee have satisfied themselves by a careful investigation. Before calling the meeting the members of the executive committee had visited the present factory while in operation. They had found a large number of employees at work and the building crowded with machinery beyond its capacity.

Mr. Stafford's report was supplemented by H. C. Tuchen and George W. Love, who had been with him in the investigation. They had been given absolute assurance that it was the intention of the concern to ultimately recruit the greater portion of its working force from among the residents of Redwood City, thus providing employment for a large number of our young people and assuring that the money paid out in wages was to find its way into the channels of local trade. So well satisfied with the proposals made were the members of the committee that they had already secured the tentative plans for a building and estimates as to its cost. As proposed, it is estimated that the cost of the building will be about $12,000, and it was possible that a site would be secured without cost. Mr. Love stated that the firm had been long established in business and were well prepared to carry out the assurances they had given.

Mr. Love also suggested a plan for a business management of the entire proposal, with a view of making the investment of the people here a business certainty. He proposed the formation of a corporation for the purpose of securing the funds and erecting the building, and dealing with the manufacturing concern in making the contract for their guarantees of good faith. By this method the whole enterprise would have a business standing, and the people would be in a position to absolutely retain ownership in the site and buildings until it had been actually demonstrated that the owners of the factory were able to meet the requirements of their proposition.

Attorney Kincaid then outlined a plan by which these suggestions might be legally put into effect, urging the formation at this time of a tentative corporation and the selection of a preliminary board of corporate trustees that no time might be lost in the completion of the preliminary work. Following this suggestion, the chairman was authorized to name two members of the Board of Trade who are to act with the members of the executive committee as corporate trustees, to act until the completion of the incorporation, when a permanent board of trustees will be selected.

Under the plan adopted, the contributions to the fund for the erection of the building will be in the form of subscriptions to the stock in this corporation. This stock will be issued and payments called for as the building progresses, thus allowing some little time for their payment.

At the suggestion of P. P. Chamberlain it was decided to test the earnestness of the men present and for this purpose a tentative subscription list was opened and subscriptions called for. While this was apparently an unexpected suggestion it was received with enthusiasm, and within a very few moments the call had been responded to by every person present with substantial contributions, the sums varying from $100 to $50. While the amount subscribed at the meeting was not totaled by the secretary, it is probable that at reached nearly one-fifth of the amount required.

The belief of the representatives present was that this project was one that should interest the citizens of the city generally as well as the merchants who compose the Board of Trade and that every person should be given an opportunity to contribute to an enterprise which means added prosperity for everyone. With this end in view it was decided to call a mass meeting for next Tuesday evening at the Alhambra. At this meeting a complete statement of the proposition will be made and the details of the plan of dealing with the proposal will be outlined.

So far the prospects of securing the location here of this important enterprise seem practically certain of realization. All that now remains is that the people should cooperate with the work of the Board of Trade and not alone will a very large amount of money be added to the monthly business circulation of the city, but our population will be materially increased and a new avenue of employment opened for the residents of the town. Every resident of the city should make it a point to attend the mass meeting Tuesday evening.

CHARLES F. CURRY

Leads in the Race for the Republican Nomination for Governor

Col. M. L. Megladdery of Santa Cruz was a visitor in Redwood on Tuesday last. Megladdery has been in the newspaper business for the past 17 years and is one of the best known men on the road having friends in every town in the state.

In an interview with a representative of this paper as to the outcome of the primary election in the fight for Governor, he said there is really only two candidates in the race and they are Curry and Johnson, with Curry far in the lead.

"Curry Strong in the San Joaquin." In a straw vote of 15 towns in the San Joaquin Valley of 50 voters in each town Curry had 69 per cent of the total vote, taking into consideration the fact that this is Hiram Johnson's stronghold according to the claims of his managers, the vote plainly indicates that the popular Secretary of State is the leading candidate.

"Curry in the Sacramento Valley" It is estimated by conservative politicians in all the different candidate camps that Curry will surely get 80 per cent of the total vote cast at the primary election in the city of Sacramento and judging from the many prominent business men that I found making a fight for Curry through the rest of the valley I would not be surprised if Curry would get as large a vote in the whole valley as he will in the capital city.

"Santa Cruz County for Curry" In Santa Cruz county you would not know there was anybody running but Curry. In Santa Cruz there is a Curry Club with a membership of over 700 and it is increasing every day.

Watsonville also has its Curry Club with over 400 members amongst whom are numbered the leading citizens of the Pajaro Valley.

"Monterey County in line for Curry" Following the example of its neighboring county, Santa Cruz, Monterey has like wise got Curry Clubs in the following towns: Salinas, Monterey, Pacific Grove, Gonzales and Soledad, the members of which are making an energetic campaign for Curry who has many friends in Monterey county.

"Curry Supporters Assured of Victory" With such favorable reports from all sections of the state coming in daily to the Curry headquarters the friends of the Curry independent candidate in the field of Chas. F. Curry are not wondering if he will not win the fight, but are now figuring how much he will beat his opponents by.

"Curry the People's Choice" I have yet to meet the man said Megladdery who says that Curry would not make a good Governor for All the People and personally I think that his experience as Secretary of State for the past 12 years has made him the best qualified candidate for the office of Governor that is in the race, and after a careful observation and after talking with men in all walks of life and in all parts of the state I am thoroughly convinced that Chas. F. Curry will be the Republican candidate for Governor and I am also convinced that he is the only man who can defeat the Democratic nominee, Theodore Bell, in the race for Governor of California.

Can't Play Away From Home.

The local nine against to program went to San Mateo last Sunday to play the San Mateo boys the fourth game of a series of five.

San Mateo had an easy victory, score being 10-1. The clamor of the local fans now is, for the last final and deciding game to be played on neutral grounds. It has been suggested that the game might be played on the San Jose baseball grounds. If the game was played say a month from now giving time to thoroughly advertise it, the game if played at San Jose would draw an immense crowd and be of the greatest interest. It seems to be a fact that the San Mateo boys cannot win from our boys own field, and it is equally a fact that our boys cannot play good ball at San Mateo. Why not then, try the merit of the two teams, have them play on neutral grounds.
